

TABLE OF CONTENTS

SIDE A

Page

- |    |                                                                                                        |
|----|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | Introduction; decision to go into sailing the Pacific; involvement in Polynesian Voyaging Society.     |
| 2  | Inspiration in sailing the Pacific; working with Nainoa Thompson; about the first voyage ever went on. |
| 3  | Where learned about traditional navigational methods and who taught.                                   |
| 4  | The navigating keys used on the voyages.                                                               |
| 5  | South Pacific islands that sailed to; role as co-navigator on the Hokule'a.                            |
| 6  | How many voyages been on; the 1992 festival of Pacific Arts                                            |
| 8  | Bringing different cultures of canoes together; Hokule'a landed at Kahana Bay.                         |
| 9  | Purpose of the voyages; next voyage coming up.                                                         |
| 10 | Preparation to sail with the Hokule'a; speaking Hawaiian on the voyages.                               |
| 12 | Who helps finance the voyages; different kinds of groups that help finance.                            |
| 14 | Educational gain from voyaging throughout Polynesia.                                                   |
| 16 | END OF INTERVIEW                                                                                       |